

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to heat resistant ergonomic cookware that incorporates a handle which utilizes a lever principal to distribute the weight from the cookware to the underside of the forearm, is equipped with an upright handle grip, and is angled so as to facilitate an increase range of pouring motion.